RAMBLERS,

Are You On One?

WILBUR MINTOSH crossed the tape first on a RAMBLER. There were only three Ramblers in the race. Quality, not quantity, counts. We have an IF—same old if—you have heard of it. If Potter, who rode a

Who was leading McIntosh, had not fallen at Twenty-second street, it is the opinion of many that the two first wheels across the line would have been

In other words, that Potter would have finished second, but we are satisfied. As it was, after being considerably bruised up, Potter recovered in time to finish eighth.

about the head. A young man who was riding with him stopped the horse, Kirtland, was unconscious for several minutes after the accident. Dr. E. M. Eisenbeis took fifteen stitches in his scalp.

A Meeting of Railroad Men.
 The Brotherhood of railway organizations will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Iron Hall Building. Speeches will be heard from some of the grand officers. An address will be made by Vice President John J. Hannahan, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. The grand officers of the Brotherhood of Railway Men, where he attended a meeting of delegates from different railway lodges.

Hawkins Makes an Arrest.
 United States Marshal Hawkins brought Elijah Bridgewater here last night for violation of the revenue laws. It is reported without Bridgewater had been selling liquor without license.

A Knife Under His Rib.
 Lowell Mays, a colored man, became involved in a quarrel with Harry Hughes, of Indiana, in a Kentucky-avenue saloon yesterday evening. Mays drew a knife and stabbed Hughes in the side. Both men were more or less intoxicated. Onlookers helped Hughes to Navin's drug store, corner of Washington street and Senate avenue, where he was found by Dr. Collins, who removed him to the City Dispensary in the ambulance. A piece of pointed stone, examination showed that the knife wound under his ribs was superficial and not at all dangerous. Mays was dressed in blue jeans and was thrown out and seriously injured.

Runaway at Washington and West.
 A team of horses driven by Albert Kinney, of No. 230 West Washington street, started to run away at the corner of Washington and West yesterday evening. The team was thrown out and seriously injured.

Prohibition Return from Pittsburgh.
 Most of the delegates to the Prohibition national convention from Indiana returned yesterday. It is announced that the State committee will assemble soon to find just how the party in Indiana stands in relation to the action of the convention. J. H. H. thinks that the party in Indiana stands in relation to the action of the convention. J. H. H. thinks that the party in Indiana stands in relation to the action of the convention.

Charles Schwaback, a young man, who said that he was a resident of Marion township, was arrested at the Union Station last night for carrying concealed weapons. The police say that he made insulting remarks to women who passed him. Schwaback had a bunch of money in his pocket, and was attached to a thong of leather. This, he said, he carried to protect himself from being robbed. He was released on $100 bail.

George J. Marott is one of the stockholders of the City company, and he had refused to join with other small holders in the demand for an investigation. He characterizes the whole matter as merely a scheme to get information for the benefit of the City company. He would sooner or later become public and in such case as to further depreciate the company's stock, which has recently fallen from $21 1/2 to $15. He thinks that if the stock can be further depreciated it will redound to the benefit of the City company.

Allen M. Fletcher and M. B. Wilson, two of the stockholders of the City company, said that they had no interest whatever in the proposed investigation and had nothing to do with it. In his conversation Mr. Marott accused Mayor Taggart of making an effort to bear the blame for the fish case.

Dr. Bates discovered Cause of Pollution.
 Dr. Bates returned from his work at Noblesville late last night, having found that the pollution of the river was due to the breaking of the levee of the strawboard works' lake, where all the refuse from the mills is held. The lake covers forty-five acres, and was about four feet deep with the refuse from the strawboard works. Whether this break was by design of the strawboard people, or whether it was accidental, is a matter to be determined by a rigid investigation on the part of the State Board of Health. Certain information came to Secretary Hurty, of the board, last night to the effect that the managers of the strawboard works had been notified of the break. Dr. Hurty will go to Noblesville today to investigate. If the levee was cut, it is probable that Judge Baker, who granted a perpetual injunction against the managers of the strawboard works, may interview the gentlemen in his court.

Dr. Bates found that the levee broke Friday night, and that work was done yesterday repairing the break, which was eight feet across, and last night the immense hollow was ready to receive its load of refuse. Dr. Bates did not receive a very warm welcome from the employees of the strawboard works, who said they considered him something of a meddler in something that did not concern him. The people in the neighborhood regard the break with suspicion. The fluid refuse did not flow out of the lake until after the levee was cut, and as there was no washout, it is not understood how the guilty parties may have thought that the refuse would be carried away by the water. The presence in the water was noticed at Indianapolis.

Dr. Hurty says the death of the fish so soon after the pollution is not due to active poisons in the water, but to the presence of carbonic acid generated by the putrefaction of the matter. This carbonic acid drives the oxygen out of the water, and thus smothered the fish. This effect is shown by the action of the fish in putting their heads out of the water to get air. Dr. Hurty says there are poisons in the refuse, but they would not act so quickly on the fish.

Local fishermen say the destruction of so many fish will ruin the sport in White river for years to come. The river has recently been showing fine results from stocking it several years ago by the government.

CITIZENS' COMPANY'S BOOKS.

Low Wallace, Jr. Thinks He Will See Them—Marott Makes Charges.

Yesterday morning Low Wallace, Jr., called on President Marott of the Citizens' Company, and asked him to allow an apartment to be used as an office for the company as attorney for several of the stockholders. He said, after the meeting, that he had no reason to believe that his request would be refused; that he thought he would be allowed to examine the books for legitimate purposes. He said that he did not expect to get to examine them if he intended to make the result public or if he intended to use it to the detriment of the company, but that if his information were to be used solely for the benefit of the stockholders represented by him he thought he would be permitted to see the books.

President Marott said he could see no reason why he should refuse the examination if it were for a legitimate purpose, and that his high regard for Mr. Wallace led him to believe that the information would not be misused.
